The "Bluebird," the 2,500 h.p. engine car in which Sir Malcolm Campbell raised his own world record for land speed from 254 m.p.h. to 272 m.p.h., at Daytona Beach, on Wednesday.

CAMPBELL TO REST ON HIS LAURELS.

Doctors' Orders Not To Use Sprained Wrist.

LONDON, To-day. Sir Malcolm Campbell has ended his speed record attempts, as doctors have ordered him not to use his left wrist.

It was so badly sprained that he could only use one hand to control his car, "Bluebird," when establishing his fresh world record of 272-108 miles per hour at Daytona Beach on Wednesday.

The "Bluebird" is being packed for shipment to England via New York.—British Wireless Service.

BLACKBURN ROVERS TRIUMPH

Manchester City Beaten By Only Goal.

The City are now fifth from the bottom of the League and by no means clear of the relegation line.

ITALIAN AIRCRAFT FOR HUNGARY.

Semi-Official Denial.

LONDON, To-day.

The Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, was questioned in the House of Commons yesterday regarding the reports alleging that 32 military aeroplanes were recently flown from Italy to Hungary and there taken to pieces and hidden.

He replied that he had seen these statements of which a semi-official denial had been issued by the Hungarian Government.

In this instance, therefore, he did not consider any special action was called for on the part of the British Government.—British Wireless Service.

BRITAIN FIRM ON IRISH QUESTION

Mr. Thomas Declines Partial Settlement.

FRIENDLY NEGOTIATIONS STILL POSSIBLE

LONDON, To-day.

Asked if he would be prepared to negotiate with the Irish Free State Government with a view to exempting the equivalent Irish product from special duties in return for the withdrawal of Irish duty on British coal, the Dominions Secretary, Mr. J. H. Thomas, in the House of Commons said that an attempt to reach a partial settlement of the Anglo-Irish dispute on the suggested lines, was not likely to be useful.

At the same time, as he had frequently explained, the United Kingdom Government remained desirous of a friendly settlement with the Irish Free State, provided on the basis that the validity of the existing obligations was accepted.—British Wireless Service.

NEW STRONG LINES OF DEFENCE

ATTACK LAUNCHED ON CHAOYANG

40,000 TROOPS FOLLOW UP AIR BOMBING

VOLUNTEERS CUT LINE BETWEEN NANLING AND PEIPIAO.

PEKING, To-day.

The determined resistance made by the Chinese troops has impeded the Japanese advance into Jehol and after three days bombing in the Chaoyang area the 40,000 Japanese and Manchukuo troops have made only a small advance.

Japanese forces are now concentrating a fierce drive on Chaoyang where Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's troops and volunteers have formed a strong line to meet the attack. Chinese have withdrawn the outlying detachments from the Nanling and Pei-piao area.

The Japanese advance on Chaoyang is being carried out by 30,000 Japanese troops and a detachment of 10,000 Manchukuo soldiers. The force is assisted by strong artillery and numerous squadrons of military aircraft. Japanese aeroplanes have been bombing Chaoyang for three days.

After two days' fighting, it appears that the Chinese have evacuated the junction town of Pei-piao and reformed a line north of the town.

Chinese volunteers are reported to have cut the railway between Nanling and Pei-piao to impede Japanese reinforcements.—Reuter.

ARMS EMBARGO SHOULD BE MADE BY THE LEAGUE

Lord Lytton Supports Labour Views.

ARTICLE SHOULD BE ADDED TO COVENANT

LONDON, To-day.

"There are no steps which Britain can take of her own accord. We must seek the consent of the other members of the League before acting," declared Lord Lytton during an interview with the "Daily Herald". There is, however, nothing to stop us taking the initiative and calling for an international agreement.

"It is incredible that any State which is a member of the League of Nations should supply arms to either party in any quarrel which is sub judice of the League. If this is being done it is plainly desirable that an Article should be added to the League Covenant, forbidding the export of arms by Member to any other member who is being judged by the League.

The Labour Party are quite right to submit that demands that armaments should be refused Japan.

"On the other hand why should we refuse to export arms if other countries continue to do so?" asked Lord Lytton.

"If there is going to be a trade in weapons of war, why should it be carried on at our expense?"

"Japan has a very strong case on merits, but no case at all for the action she has taken."

Citing the fact that the League found Greece wrong after the Greco-Bulgarian war and that the Greeks turned out the Government and substituted one with a policy, Lord Lytton added that it is hoped by all friends of Japan, (which is governed virtually by military rule) that a similar action may be taken in that country.

Peace is still possible with a satisfactory solution for both sides.

"The only solution is the complete demilitarisation of the district and the establishment of an efficient Police Force with foreign officers sufficient to keep order."—Reuter.

Arms Embargo As An Economic Boycott.

LONDON PRESS VIEW.

LONDON, To-day.

Referring to the question of the prohibition of the export of arms, the "Daily Express" in a leading article asks what there is to prevent either China or Japan, buying munitions from Britain through the medium of a third country, and how are "munitions" to be defined? (Continued on Page 12.)

AUSTRALIA DISMISSED FOR 435

England 63 For 1 In Fifth Test.

LARWOOD TAKES FOUR WICKETS

SYDNEY, To-day.

Australia, who were 411 for 7 at lunch, were dismissed for 435, and England scored 63 for the loss of one wicket before tea in the fifth Test.

England have won the Ashes, but the team is striving to draw on level terms with Australia in the number of games won. Australia have now won 51 against England's 50.

A crowd of 7,000 were present when Darling (66) and Oldfield (18) resumed Australia's first innings at 2.36 for 5 this morning. The weather was sunny and the wicket in good condition.

Allen and Larwood opened the English attack, the latter bowling the leg theory. The third century was hoisted after 300 minutes' play, and the English attack did not meet with success until 42 runs had been added by the overnight pair.

Darling, who had batted for 148 minutes, attempted a big drive off Verity, missed, and was clean bowled. 423-6-55. His innings was featured by powerful cutting, which resulted in eight boundary hits.

Lee, who was making his Test debut, hit out in aggressive manner. When he was caught at extra cover by Jardine he had scored 42 in 35 minutes and had advanced the score to 387. He hit seven boundaries and saw 380 hoisted after 347 minutes' play.

Oldfield, who was unable to play at Brisbane owing to his injury sustained at Adelaide, reached his 50 after 131 minutes. At lunch he was undefeated 151, while O'Reilly was 16 and the score 411 for 7.

OLDFIELD RUN OUT. There were 10,000 present after lunch when Allen and Larwood again opened the English "shock" attack. (Continued on Page 12.)

are often the forewarnings of serious ailments. The throat is regarded by medical men as one of the weak spots which has to be carefully guarded against the attack of disease germs. People who are subject to throat affections should keep Respiroids handy. At the first signs of soreness a few tablets will bring relief and prevent further complications. Respiroids, used occasionally during cold or changeable weather, will also act as a great safeguard.

The action of Respiroids is unique. They act directly on the membranes which line the throat and other air passages, releasing pleasantly aromatic but highly germicidal and antiseptic vapours which circulate into every tube and cavity.

Respiroids ease irritation, soothe inflamed membranes, break up phlegm, ease the breathing and destroy germs rapidly. There is nothing which brings belief for throat and chest troubles so speedily or so pleasantly as Respiroids. Obtainable from all chemists, price $1.00 per bottle. Or by post, $1.20, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 451, Kingsway Road, Shanghai. (Product of The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., London, Toronto, Paris, New York, Singapore, Shanghai, etc.).

BRIDGE TEAS FOR THE EPICURE.

Both Savoury And Sweet.

The bridge tea is a somewhat serious affair, as it is more of a meal than the usual simple tea and cakes offered to the afternoon caller. Not only must a variety of sandwiches be provided but substantial little trifles of a savoury description which can be eaten with a silver tea-fork.

Cakes at these teas must give way to the savouries, but to banish the small cake altogether is a mistake, for many people like a sweet morsel with which to finish. Cakes, if good, will always hold their own, but the highly decorative, rather sickly, iced cake has, for the bridge tea, lost favour.

Here is a method of making a variation of the sausage-roll, which is appropriate for this tea. Make a small quantity of good rough puff pastry, using three ounces of butter to four ounces of flour. Sift the flour with a pinch of salt and break up the butter in it into pieces about the size of a hazel-nut. Add a squeeze of lemon juice, the yolk of an egg, and sufficient cold water to make all into a smooth, moderately stiff dough. Roll out five times in a long strip, folding the strip into three, after each roll, in order to form a square. After the final fold roll out about one-eighth of an inch thick and cut out small oval pieces with a pastry cutter.

Have ready about six ounces of sausage meat which has been passed through a coarse wire sieve, well seasoned and flavoured with dried powdered sage or sweet herbs. Roll up the meat into lengths the size of a cigarette and place one of these on each oval of pastry. Fold over first one side and then the other and egg the edge to fasten the roll down. Roll gently backwards and forwards once or twice in order to shape evenly; egg the surface of the pieces and bake in a good oven for from twelve to fifteen minutes. These rolls may be made with cold cooked chicken or veal, if flavoured with fat bacon and moistened with a little white sauce.

Dumplings

The dressing of salads must vary according to the nature of the green vegetables and ingredients used for it. Green salads are, for the most part, dressed with oil and vinegar, salt and pepper according to the green stuff. Sugar should never be used. The three important points to bear in mind to obtain a good salad are:—(1) the freshness of the green stuff. If such saladings are lettuce, they should be freshened in cool water, after having been carefully washed and trimmed.

(2) The quality of oil and vinegar. The oil must be of the first quality; do not forget that "salad oil" sold everywhere will never replace pure olive oil for taste or for health. Vinegar should be wine vinegar, and not malt vinegar or a chemical one which is extremely bad for the system.

(3) The preparation of the dressing. The dressing should be prepared in the salad bowl before putting in the salad which, after having been washed and shaken in a salad basket, must be dried and the leaves torn, not cut. The basis of a dressing is oil and vinegar to the proportion of one tablespoonful of vinegar to three tablespoonfuls of oil, add salt and pepper.

Consomme Edward VII
Prepare a good fowl consomme. When clarifying it, add two tablespoonfuls of fine curry powder. Garnish with some rice, separately cooked in the Indian way, and well washed, in order that it may not lessen the limpidity of the consomme, which must be of a bright golden colour.

Codfish Omelet

Melt 1 tablespoon butter, add 2 tablespoons flour, stir until smooth, then add gradually $\frac{1}{4}$ cup hot milk and 1 cup flaked codfish; cook 2 minutes. Beat the yolks of 2 eggs until thick and lemon tinted, add fish mixture, mix well, then fold in the whites of 2 eggs beaten until stiff. Melt $\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoons butter in an iron spider, turn in mixture, spread evenly and let cook in frying pan until well puffed, then set in a moderate oven to finish cooking. Fold and turn on a warm serving dish and pour around 1 cup white sauce.

Salad Monte Christo

Lobsters, potatoes and hard-boiled eggs in equal quantities, all cut in dice. The inevitable trifles also appear but could be omitted and replaced by boiled bamboo shoots. A lettuce heart is placed in the middle and the dressing is made with mayonnaise seasoned with mustard; chopped gherkins are scattered over.

HOW TO BE HAPPY THOUGH MARRIED.

Don't Tell Her Woolies Will Last Longer.

HINTS BY M. O. H.

"Husbands must be taught that dinners have a habit of going all wrong just when a wife wants them to go all right. The last thing a man should say in these circumstances is 'I shall never forget my mother's pastry!'"

This was one of the thoughts on marriage communicated by Dr. James Fenton, Medical Officer of Health of Kensington, to those attending the twelfth winter school for health visitors and school nurses at Bedford College, Regent's Park.

"There is no doubt that many marriages are wrecked by the little things in life, which mount up and up until the crash comes, with disastrous effects for the parents and children."

"It is not always possible to give a wife pocket-money, but men do want to remember that things wear out and need replacing."

Tell Her She's Pretty

"Again, if a wife wants silk stockings, it is no good saying that woollen stockings last twice as long. Let her have some silk stockings it is futile to try to reason with a woman on a matter of clothing."

"Men must encourage their wives to look pretty at all times. A man must not forget to tell his wife occasionally that she does look pretty. She will probably tell him not to be silly, but what woman does not like a little flattery sometimes?"

Fifty-Fifty.

Speaking of "fathercraft," Dr. Fenton said that women wanted a strong manly man, but they would like a man to have an understanding of women's problems sufficient to make them sympathise with them when necessary.

"While the woman cares for the children in the home," he said, "the man must provide the money to help the woman in her work. He must be taught that his wages are no more his than they are his wife's. He has no more right to keep 10s. a week for pocket money than she has."

"The balance left over when all essentials have been paid for should be equally divided between the man and the woman."

"Another lesson we must teach is that a man's work is no more laborious than that of a woman and it is probably much less monotonous. He is no more entitled to a spare evening than his wife is."

A free evening in the week makes a woman a 100 per cent. better wife and mother.

"Good fathers are not born, but made—and made by themselves."

The days of the wispy evening wrap is over for the present.

The coat in which much material is used in a slightly incoherent manner—all awatse and gauge and wonderful bias line—demands ring and chiffon veils. Other more practical coats are developed in ribbed velvet. Women who want really useful wraps, will do well to choose the latter. It does not show wear and tear half so quickly as a plain one.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

The solution of the above with a new cross-word puzzle will appear in to-morrow's issue.

"MOST DANGEROUS GAME" A THRILLING FILMALISON SKIPWORTH EXCELS IN KING'S ATTRACTION.*"The Lodger" Coming To Queen's.

"The Most Dangerous Game" brings a new name to the screen. Leslie Banks, the Briton who has made good in comedy or drama on Broadway, gives a remarkable characterization of the mad Russian, who hunts humans instead of animals. Hot after thrills, this picture hits upon a sinister idea, but it does give thrills, although it will be likely to trouble the dreams of sensitive people. Ernest Schoedsack and Irving Pichel directed this film from the story by Richard Connell.

The wealthy madman intrenches himself on a lonely island, shifts the reef lights about in a way to wreck the unwary mariner and lands a select lot of castaways, who are then at his mercy. We know quite well that the hero and heroine, (Joel McCrea and Fay Wray) will escape in the end, even though the hero plunges from a cliff with a blood hound at his throat. No one can deny the story is silly and far fetched, but it is original and exciting. Robert Armstrong is in the cast but it is the Englishman who dominates the thriller (Central).

"The Lodger"

Mrs. Belloc Lowndes famous novel about the murder scares of Jack the Ripper comes to the screen again, with Ivor Novello playing the part of the mysterious lodger, as he did in the silent. Henry Ainley played it on the stage, if I remember rightly. A. W. Bascombe makes his first screen appearance as a most successful one as the landlord, and Elizabeth Allan, the best among all the female British stars (now under contract to M.G.M. in Hollywood) with the other two gives a grand performance. I won't tell the story but the solution of the problem is veiled with such suspense that the denouement is sensational. DON'T miss this one at the Queen's.

"Forgotten Commandments"

In "The Forgotten Commandments" we have a conventional drama set in the Hollywoodian Russia. Its main object seems to have been to drag in the spectacular sequences from the old silent success "The Ten Commandments". Irving Pichel, with a decided American accent, is the Russian, agnostic and scientist. Marguerite Churchill and Sari Maritza (Patricia Detering-Nathan of Tintin) struggle with the roles of heroine and vamp. Gene Raymond wears a Russian tunic, but that is the only way he makes us think for a moment the environment is in the present-day suffering land of the Soviet. The technical skill with which Cecil B. de Mille managed the parting of the waters of the Red Sea and the presentation of the Commandments makes the picture commendable. Otherwise it has nothing to recommend it.—(King's).

"Washington Masquerade"

In "The Washington Masquerade" (titled in England, "The Mad Masquerade") we have the States capital city—politics—and Lionel Barrymore. Together, they are excellent in small parts. The settings are lavish, the frocks enchanting—the acting all the average "fan" could desire. "Leap Year" is a real laughter maker. Tom Walls shows a remarkable deftness in his handling of the part of the man who searches for the owner of the lovely face that haunts him. The fun moves at a fast pace, and the star deserves the greatest credit, not only for the acting but—that is most difficult—also the direction. Strongly advised. (Central).

"Flag Lieutenant"

The film for which all loyal Britons are waiting: "The Flag Lieutenant" with Henry Edwards playing the part he made famous in the silent. How well I can remember Cyril Maude in this as a play. Highest praise from all quarters. Due soon at the Central.

"He Learned About Women"

Stuart Erwin, that grand comedian is a millionaire bookworm who decides to see a bit of life, in "He Learned About Women." He has the able assistance of Alison Skipworth. She is the kind of actress who brings joy to our hearts. As the out-of-work actress engaged to teach the self-conscious bookworm poise and self confidence, she is—as usual, priceless. Remember the little girl in "Million Dollar Legs"—Susan Fleming. In this, she is charming as the love affair. Grant Mitchell as the Butler is second to none—Stuart Erwin dumb and slow, is at his best. One of the most amusing films we have had this season. Recommended. (King's).

Star's Features.

A Musical show which ran on Broadway for years. "Flying High" with Bert LaRue and Charlotte Greenwood. Then comes lovely Constance Bennett and her father, with Ben Lyon in a grand picture — "Bought." This will be followed by Bill Haines in "Are You Listening?" All due at the Star.

AROUND THE BRITISH STUDIOS.

The contract of Wendy Barrie (daughter of Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C.) has been bought from the London Film Co. by Paramount, so this actress, who shows promise according to the English critics, will swell the numbers of British actresses in Hollywood. Phyllis Barry in "Cynara," Miriam Jordan in "Sherlock Holmes," Elizabeth Allan, Benita Hume, Elissa Landi, Diana Wynward, Lillian Harvey, Heather Angel, and many more.

Davy Burnaby remembered in the "Co-Optimists" has made his first screen appearance.

Betty Stockfield, the Australian actress, Henry Kendall and Hugh Wakefield are at work on "King of the Ritz" at the Lion Studio.

Jessie Matthews has scored triumphs in "Good Companions" and "Midshipmaid." Nineteen-year-old Judy Kelly, said to be Australia's gift to talkies, has been given a long-term contract by B.I.P.

Madeleine Carroll makes a screen re-appearance with Ivor Novello in "Sleeping Car."

Ralph Lynn, Winifred Shotter and Robertson Hare have finished the Aldwych success—"Fifty-fifty." Lynn and Walls will be together again in "Turkey Time."

Constance Shotter, sister of Winnie, seems like being another film discovery. Her work in "For the love of Mike" receives the highest praise.

A new play by Ivor Novello was to start after "Musical Chairs" ended its run.

Gertrude Lawrence is the star in "No Funny Business," a comedy with music by Noel Gay and Frank Vosper to be made by a new British Film Company, "John Stafford Production."

Charlotte Greenwood, the famous American comedienne, who is appearing in the Drury Lane success "Wild Violets," is to make her British film appearance in the Gaumont-British version of Ian Hay's farcical play "Orders are Orders."

Little Jacques Lyn, recently seen with Laurel and Hardy, was born in London of English parents.

Binnie Barnes, who went over to Fox to act in "Cavalcade," did not like Hollywood and has returned to the London studios.

I'M TELLING YOU.

Barbara Kent, who will be remembered with Harold Lloyd—in "Welcome Danger," recently married Harry Eddington, the famous manager who "made" Greta Garbo. Janet Gaynor is a sad little girl these days. Charles Farrell has left Fox—and her romance with Lyndell Pack has finished. The HOLLYWOOD NEEDS NEW BLOOD.Greta Garbo Was A Barber's Girl.

For the last few years most of the screen's newcomers have been recruited from the ranks of the stage's established players, but the talkies have now reached the stage when producers have decided that they want to develop their own stars again.

The films need new blood. And the same producers are beginning to remember that the greatest actresses of the screen learned about life in the hard school of the office and the factory before they attempted acting.

The Press agents have been telling those stories of stellar youths spent in the cloistered luxury of southern mansions and romantic old European castles, so often that the movie kings had nearly come to believe them themselves.

Joan Crawford As Waitress.

But Garbo was a lather girl in a Swedish barber shop, then a seamstress, trimming hats. Joan Crawford was a waitress and she earned the money to go away to get a chorus job by working behind a counter in a department store.

Mariene Dietrich worked as a film extra. Ann Harding and Claudette Colbert were stenographers. So was Janet Gaynor.

Barbara Stanwyck, the best of the young American actresses, was a telephone girl. Norma Shearer, the immaculate sophisticated queen of the society sinners, thumped a piano in a music shop and later in a ten-cent cinema.

In New York's Radio Land was the biggest "Pop" ever known in the theatrical profession.

Clark Gable will play the part of the Italian Officer which made Ronald Colman world famous—in "The White Sister" with Helen Hayes. Shall be surprised if his performance ranks with that of Colman.

"Desire for Living," in which Noel Coward, Lynn Fontaine and Alfred Lunt are acting is a triumph for all. Coward, the author says, it is the happiest time in his life to be associated with two such geniuses.

John Barrymore will play "Reunion in Vienna" which we hoped the Lunts would also play on the screen.

Athletic Stars

Our film favourites keep in splendid physical condition, despite a rather prevalent impression that they lounge languidly on the sets while "doubles" and "stand-ins" do the work.

Victor McLaglen, George O'Brien, Douglas Fairbanks, Henry Victor and other leading actors are expert boxers. George Raft, hailed as a future Valentino, was a professional fighter before he entered the films. Will Rogers, Jack Holt, and Hal Roach are among the leading polo players in the film colony.

Tennis players include Ronald Coleman, Fredric March, Marlene Dietrich, Carole Lombard, Constance Bennett, Walter Byron, Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, and Doug Jun.

Among the swimmers we find Tallulah Bankhead, Claudette Colbert, Fredric March, Norma Shearer, Lewis Stone, Joan Crawford, Conrad Nagel, Johnnie Weissmuller, Jeanette MacDonald, and Carole Lombard.

Horseback riders include Carole Lombard, Hobart Bosworth, and Norma Shearer.

Ronald Coleman, Clive Brook, H. B. Warner, C. Aubrey Smith, Claude King, and Desmond Roberts, play cricket.

"Bath Tub King" Back.

Cecil B. de Mille, is the man who combines biblical and bathroom spectacles for the delectation of the fans.

Florence Vidor and Gloria Swanson helped De Mille make the film world bathroom-conscious back in the early days of his glory.

In "Dynamite" he achieved the high-light of his career as the "Bath-tub King" by introducing a glass tub.

And now in his "come-back" talkie, "The Sign of the Cross," he will present Claudette Colbert bathing in a pool of milk with only a fountain spray to clothe her.

Perhaps that will be better still. Those Premieres.

So, after all, Hollywood could not get along without its premieres—those glittering first nights for which the stars put on their best bibs, tuckers and smiles and go on parade before their public.

A little while ago it was announced that they were to be dropped for the duration of the depression, but there have been at least two notable ones at the famous Grauman Chinese theatre in recent weeks.

COMPULSORY RESIGNATION ORDER IN U.S.

Diplomats Anxious For Future.

26 MINISTERS AFFECTED

New York.

One class of U. S. Government servants who are not looking forward to the change of Administration on March 4 next with any joy are 26 diplomats who have been advanced from ranks of the Foreign Service to become Ministers or Ambassadors.

All their steady application to the duties of their adopted career and all the progress they have made may go for naught, because custom requires that on change of government they shall hand in their resignations. No doubt most will be re-appointed, but the uncertainty must be galling for many.

This seems to be a case where advancement through service and merit goes without reward and even has its penalties, for those who have not risen to the rank of Minister or Ambassador remain in their posts undisturbed by changing administrations. Some of the men who may lose their jobs are unprepared for it financially. They have had for the most part to live expensively on inadequate salaries and have been unable to save money. They will have to seek other occupations at one of the worst periods in economic history.

Of 28 men who began in the foreign service (which is protected by law), and who have attained ministerial or ambassadorial rank, all but two will have to tender their resignations. The two unaffected are Addison E. Southard, who is Minister Resident at Addis Ababa (Abyssinia) and Paul Knabenshue, Minister Resident and Consul-General to Iraq. These two are still regarded as being in the category of "foreign service" officials.—Reuter.

AMERICAN SENATORS LIVE WELL

$700,000 SPENT IN FISCAL YEAR.

RESPLENDENT FUNERALS PROVIDED

Washington.

Some reasons why members of the U. S. Senate dislike giving up their seats and going back to private life are revealed by publication of the report of the secretary of the Senate, showing the disposition of the $700,000 spent by the Senate in the last fiscal year.

There the story is unfolded of the prerogatives of a Senator—a salary of $10,000 (£2,000 at par); a year, a staff of secretaries and clerks, free stationery, free haircuts and shaves, meals at less than cost, all kinds of mineral and fancy water, when needed, private place for parking cars, private shower baths, free vacations in Alaska for some and resplendent funerals for those who die in the "service."

In addition to keeping up a barber shop, where its members get free shaves, haircuts, facials and shoe shines, and a restaurant which in the last fiscal year cost the U. S. Treasury $11,000 the Senate buys and keeps on hand for the elected ninety-six soda mint tablets, aspirin tablets, bicarbonate of soda and throat gargles.

For the Vice-President the Senate buys and keeps in operation, at a cost of $300 in the last fiscal year, a big shiny car.

Incidentally, this last expense account indicates to some persons that members of the Senate are becoming effeminate. There were no charges for the old-fashioned gallon-size cuspidor. Instead, it was recorded that six dozen green porcelain cuspidors cost $11. The Secretary of the Senate preferred two brass cuspidors in his office at 6.

Of the sum spent by the Senate in the last fiscal year, $294,011 (£58,802 at par) went for investigations, and that is where the Senators have their fun, especially when it is some subject like the conservation of wild animal life that must be investigated.—Reuter.

War Debts.

It is certain that there could be no more effective way of helping to make the World Economic Conference a success than to settle the problem of War debts before it meets. In fact it must be frankly recognized that the Conference cannot achieve any results unless the problems of War debts and reparations are speedily disposed of. Sir Frederick Leith Ross, the representative of the British Government on the Preparatory Commission, described a definite and satisfactory settlement of War debts as the first of the four great tasks to which the Conference should devote itself. That must not be taken to mean that this settlement can safely be postponed until the Conference meets—especially as it does not meet for some months. Payments might, of course, be suspended to give time for discussion. But the time has passed when a moratorium or a scaling down would be sufficient. What is needed—and needed before June 15—is a definite settlement on the lines of the Lausanne agreements about reparations, wiping out the whole system of inter-Governmental payments by a final transaction which does not disturb the exchanges. Only a settlement of that kind will enable Germany's creditors, who are also debtors of the United States, to ratify the Lausanne agreement and prevent the revival of the financial, economic, and political frictions from which that agreement promised to free the world and from which the United States has suffered together with the rest of us. A moratorium would be almost worse than useless, for it would only prolong the existing uncertainty, which must be ended before there can be any return of confidence or revival of trade. A scaling down—the continuance, that is, on a reduced basis of the necessity for constantly recurring transfers of currency without any corresponding movement of goods—would be no more effective as a cure for the present ills than were the successive alleviations which were made to enable Germany to go on paying reparations. Painful—even dangerous—to the whole system of international credit as the shock might be, a general default, which would be the inevitable consequence of a failure to reach an agreed settlement before June 15, might in the long run prove less harmful than any postponement or any futile endeavour to make shift with half-measures. These inter-Governmental payments are a malignant ulcer in the economic system of the world, which must be cut out once for all if the patient is to be saved. The only practicable alternatives, in short, are another Lausanne or default. There might indeed be a third course—such a complete recasting of the fiscal and economic system of the United States as would enable the debtor nations to repay in goods and services what they borrowed in goods and services; but no one acquainted with American conditions can regard it as even a remote possibility. Senator Borah in some of his recent speeches, recognising the necessity of winding up this "tragic book-keeping" of the War, has seemed to imply that a settlement of War debts must be made contingent on the simultaneous settlement of a number of other questions such as disarmament, tariffs, and currency difficulties. Other eminent Americans betray a tendency to regard War debts as an asset as well as a nuisance, and to think that in getting rid of them they would be making a concession for which they could reasonably expect concessions in return. That is a dangerous attitude, for any attempt to use the debts as a bargaining weapon could only complicate the situation and make for further delay where there has been too much delay already. The urgency of the questions which Mr. Borah wishes to see included in a single comprehensive settlement is not to be doubted. The world will not be well again until a check is put to international competition in armaments and until existing impediments to international trade are reduced by common agreement. International trade will remain under a serious handicap so long as the conditions are allowed to persist which make it impossible to stabilise exchanges by re-establishing a single international standard of currency. But that is not to say that all these problems should be linked together and that no one of them should be solved until they can all be solved together. To remove at one swoop the whole network of obstructions preventing a return to prosperity would undoubtedly be a great and wonderful achievement. But if we are to wait until that achievement is possible before attempting to remove any of them, then the only result will be that they will all of them remain where they are and that nothing whatever will be done. Each of these difficulties must be tackled and solved as a separate problem. Each of them is complicated enough in itself without the introduction of fresh complications belonging to the others. If and when one is solved it will facilitate the solution of the rest. That is particularly true of the War debts problem, the most pressing and important of all. When it is out a cure for everything.

WHERE THE WEST IS STILL "WILD"

NEVADA THRIVES ON QUICK DIVORCE

NO PROHIBITION MEASURES

(By MARTIN MOORE).

Reno, Nevada. If States chose arms and mottos to match their ideals, Nevada's device would be a wide open door surmounted by the Rabelaisian exhortation: "Do what you will."

For Nevada's ideal is personal liberty. This is still frontier territory, drawing its population from all the States of the Union, and from all nationalities in the world. Even to-day Nevadans still retain much of the free and easy, untrammelled outlook of fortune-seekers.

Nevada is proud of its freedom, too, and likes to boast that it is the only State in America where the "wildness" of the West is no story, book fiction, but a modern fact. Even in the streets of Reno you may still see genuine cowboys, wearing ten-gallon hats and high-heeled boots. And up in the mountains you may still encounter gold prospectors—only to-day they carry their picks and shovels, not on a pack-donkey, but in the back seat of a Ford.

Prohibition Ignored.

Drinking and gambling have always been the traditional relaxations of the "wild" West, and Nevada's legislators do not mean to deprive the last surviving Westerners of these pastimes. This is the only State in the Union where games of chance are legalised, and within its borders there are enough gambling dens and clubs to satisfy the gaming instincts of all America.

Nevada is, of course, just as much subject to the Federal Prohibition laws as any other part of the country. But the State Legislature has always refused to co-operate with Washington in enforcing so unwelcome a measure. In practice, therefore, it has remained a dead letter here.

Throughout more than 110,000 square miles over which Nevada's territory extends there have never at any time been more than five resident federal enforcement officers. Consequently, the doors of the saloons are almost as wide open as those of the gaming houses.

But freedom is more than an intellectual ideal here. Like other Americans, the Nevadans expect their ideals to pay; and they have been so busily "cashing in on liberty" that they have only just begun to ask: "What is the slump?"

Reno's Endless Gale.

The legalisation of gambling in 1931 opened the door for what seemed an endless carnival of tourists. From all over America, men and women with money to burn came pouring into Reno, turning the quiet town into a city of perpetual gala. In almost every street gaming clubs alternated with luxury stores where the fortunate might spend their winnings, or speakeasies where the luckless might drown the memory of their losses.

Immediately gambling was legalised some 600 games of chance were licensed in Washoe County alone, almost all of them in Reno. Similar "gold rush" scenes were witnessed in Carson City, Las Vegas, and all the other little towns in Nevada. From these gambling houses State, county, and city all took toll in licence fees.

What matter if the price of silver and copper slumped at unheard-of levels? Who but the ranchers cared of live-stock were not worth the raising? Nevada substituted the whirling ball and the rattling dice for the abandoned mines and deserted cattle ranches. Money came pouring in from all over the United States, and business boomed. Rents rocketed sky-high; hotels and apartment-houses were crammed; shops were filled with expensive merchandise.

The Divorce Mill.

Every road leading to Reno, for miles before the city is reached, is an unbroken ribbon of pleasure resorts. The Rainbow Garden, the Cow Shed, the Doll House, the Heidelberg Inn—their very names suggest the gay suburbs of a town given over to money-spending and amusement. In between these resorts are innumerable "auto camps"—little townships of brightly painted cottages, where those unable to find accommodation in Reno may have a bed and bath under the same roof as they garage their cars. (P. & O. Rajputana.

The prosperity brought by the gamblers has been supplemented by Nevada's other industry—the "divorce mill." There is a good deal of misunderstanding about this activity, which has made the name of little, obscure Reno known throughout the world. Divorce in Nevada is not easier than anywhere else, but simply quicker.

"Mental cruelty," "incompatibility of temperament," and other freak grounds for dissolution of marriage find no place in the Nevada code. But once a divorce has been granted, the parties are free to re-marry within the hour—and many of them do. In this Nevada's law differs, for instance, from that of California, which will dissolve a marriage on small pretext, but demands an interval of one year to elapse before the decree is absolute.

Lawyers' Racket.

Yet even this quick process of law is not peculiar to Nevada, nor is it the real magnet that draws the unhappily married to Reno. What attracts film stars from Hollywood and Society people from New York is the fact that it takes only six weeks to become a citizen of Nevada, entitled to the benefits of its legal code. Other States have easier divorce, and other States allow re-marriage just as speedily; but nowhere else can the outsider take citizenship on such short residence.

Whatever the merits of its law, Nevada's "divorce mill" is really a lawyers' "racket." Reno has fewer than 20,000 inhabitants, but there are more than 130 divorce lawyers in the town. Between them they receive some $750,000 a year in fees, while the court authorities get $135,000 for filing the applications.

Until two years ago the divorce mill used to work quite profitably on the three months' residential qualification then in force. But Arkansas and Idaho cast envious

"BAD MONEY" FOR ENGLAND

Temporary Capital Movements.

CHECKING FLUCTUATIONS IN STERLING

London, To-day.
Replying to the House of Commons question regarding the recent gold purchases by the Bank of England, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, said that for various reasons, large amounts of foreign money had been coming into London recently which were bad money, in the sense that they could not rely on retaining them.

If no precautions were taken, these capital movements would result in a sharp rise in sterling to be followed later on by a sharp fall. Everyone would agree that such fluctuations, which were very harmful to trade, should be limited as far as possible, but it was not in general interests to state what particular methods might be adopted to check them. He agreed with the question that these purchases of gold should be regarded as flexible additions to the bank's gold holding and that it would be improper to regard them as permanent additions to the gold reserves, which may be used in future for restoring credit. — British Wireless Service.

ROOSEVELT'S INVALUABLE COUNSELLOR

Dr. Moley Stated A Real Power.

POST AS TREASURY ASSISTANT

New York.
One of the real powers in the new administration is likely to be Professor Raymond Moley of Columbia University, New York. Exactly how and where he will fit in seems a little uncertain, but it can be taken for granted that after March 4 next he will continue to be, as he undoubtedly now is, the most intimate of Mr. Roosevelt's advisers on all matters except patronage.

It seems as if the President-elect would be lost without Dr. Moley. From the beginning of his campaign until now he has hardly moved without Dr. Moley. It was Dr. Moley whom Mr. Roosevelt took as his sole support to the White House Conference on war debts in November. Three months ago, not a great many people had ever heard of Dr. Moley. Now, the whole United States knows his name. During the campaign, it is pretty generally established that he had more to do with the preparation of the Roosevelt speeches than anyone else. He is a skilful writer, a good phrase maker, able to impart a convincing ring to his work—particularly qualified to help a candidate in Mr. Roosevelt's position. It was not until after the election, however, that the real closeness of Dr. Moley was appreciated. It is now clear that he is closer than anyone else, that he is consulted more often, that his opinions have more weight and that he has the complete confidence of the President-elect.

Apparently a lot will be seen and heard of Dr. Moley in Washington during the next few years. Naturally, public and political interest is keen as to the kind of man he is. Dr. Moley is of medium height and weight, clean shaven, rather dark, with shrewd eyes, a pleasant manner. He does not have an academic appearance. He is, of course, a highly cultured man, but not of the "high-brow" type.

He is 46 years old, was born in Ohio. He taught for several years in various small institutions and since 1923, has been at Columbia University, first as assistant professor of Government, and now as professor of Public Law. He is the author of numerous books and pamphlets on government and politics, and seems to have specialised too in crime surveys. He has two children—twins. He does not reveal in his autobiographical sketch either his religion or his politics. That Mr. Roosevelt wants him close by during his administration is agreed, but how conveniently to arrange that, is said to be something of a problem. Apparently there is no place for him in the Cabinet. On the other hand, any

MILLIONS OF ARMED WORKERS READY TO FIGHT

Soviet Paper's Guarded Threat.

POSSIBILITY DISCUSSED OF WAR WITH JAPAN

Moscow, To-day.

The Kremlin is very closely watching the Japanese action in Jehol, although it is not considered to be a threat.

It is well aware that some of the Japanese political and military leaders openly stated the necessity of war with Russia in the Japanese press, and views the Japanese refusal to sign a non-aggression pact as an "arming circumstance."

The "Izvestia," Government organ, in a leading article, declares that Japanese action will bring a state of open warfare with China and says that the Japanese hoped that the Democratic elections in America would decrease American interest in Manchuria.

But contrarily, the newspaper continues, Japanese-American relations are sharpening, and the present events will bring up the question of whether or not America will allow the Japanese to blockade China.

It reiterates the Soviet desire for peace, and emphasises that the Soviet will not interfere in the struggles of Imperialist nations.

However, the Imperialists attack the Soviet, "Millions of armed workers will be ready to fight like lions, and sacrifice their lives so that Imperialist nations will never again dare to interfere with a Socialist nation."

Loss Of Soviet Air Base.

JAPANESE ARSON SUSPECTED.

Moscow, To-day.
Serious allegations that certain Japanese ordered him to destroy the civil air base at Ustboishetzk, Kamchatka and other buildings important to the Soviet, were made by a Japanese named Katsawa who was arrested in connection with an outbreak of fire at the base on January 19.

As a result of the enquiry, two Militia men, guarding the base, have been accused of arson and the storekeeper of a local State Farm accused of inciting them.

All three are reported to have pleaded "guilty," and alleged that they were instructed by Katsawa. — Reuter.

LONDON'S FEARLESS POLICE HORSES

Four Months' Special Training Needed.

EXCELLENT DISCIPLINE

London.
In troubled times like these, when demonstrations of unemployed are of frequent occurrence, demonstrations which may easily turn into riots, the London police authorities rely largely upon the mounted police to handle these difficult situations properly.

It is an extraordinary sight to see the police horses pushing back the unruly crowds without injury and remaining calm in spite of the fireworks thrown under their feet from the back of the crowd. Their splendid discipline is only obtained by careful training and a number of the horses and men have returned to the training school at Imber Court for their annual "refresher" course.

Some of the cleverest horses in England are picked out for service with the Metropolitan Police and at Imber Court they are trained for every emergency. They are recruited at the age of four and usually "pass out" in about six months.

The training begins by accustoming them to strange sights and noises. Flags are waved before their eyes, rattles are operated beside them, and revolver shots are fired near them. Gradually they get accustomed to all these and then—one of the most difficult parts of the course—they are taught to walk through flames.

Their training for dealing with crowds is carried out with long lines of dummies which they are taught to push back without kicking. They are also taught to step over prostrate figures and, once they have mastered all this, they have to learn to do it all again to the accompaniment of gramophones or loud speakers. When they have passed all these tests, they are passed for duty in London's streets. — Reuter.

CRITICISM OF BOARD'S
ACTIONAustralians Are Fellow Sinners.

CONFERENCE RECOMMENDED.

Sydney, January 19.
THE Sydney Sun, in a leading article on the subject of the Australian Cricket Board of Control's protest against "body-line" bowling, says:—

"The Board of Control seems to have become somewhat confused between the verbs to cable and to burble. M.C.C. might be forgiven, after reading the appalling suggestions of Imperial disruption, if it replied to the board with a request that it pack its several heads in ice. However, it is obvious that the cricket authorities in England are going to receive the representations in a friendly, inquiring spirit despite the board's weakness in diplomacy."

The Daily Telegraph says:—"The relations between Australia and England have survived much greater shocks, but the Board of Control is hardly noted for its sense of proportion. Why not talk the matter over before pushing ahead with an ultimatum? It is certain that all feeling against the practice is not on the Australian side."

CLIMAX TO LEG THEORY
PROTESTS.Oldfield Says Larwood's Was
"Perfectly Fair."

In an interview the day after his accident, Oldfield said: "I do not blame Larwood or the English team for my mishap. The ball which struck me was a fair one, and it was just bad luck that I should be hit."

Oldfield's impression of the incident is that the ball worked a trifle towards the offside, and so caused him to misjudge the flight. Expert eye-witnesses are convinced that the ball hung a little before rising from the pitch, and they believe that this probably caused Oldfield to swing too soon. He had almost completed a quick stroke when he was struck.

and a former Olympic athlete, who knew Mr. D. R. Jardine at Oxford, has telegraphed to Mr. Jardine: "Malley's suggested conferences are one matter, but the accusation of unsportsmanlike play is very different. As an ex-international, I strongly object to the boorish, bitter, insulting wording of the Control Board's protest. The English attitude in 1921 was very different."

Mr. Hughes, when interviewed, recalled Gregory's tactics in England. He said: "If a conference is held, Australia must attend as fellow-sinners. The position of the fieldsmen is immaterial. It is the fast bumping ball about which the question of danger has arisen."

The Melbourne Herald editorial states: "While the Board's cable to Marylebone is justified by the disclosure of bitter feelings among the players and spectators, the reference to upsetting friendly relations between England and Australia is an hysterical exaggeration."

It recommends a conference between P. F. Warner, D. R. Jardine, J. B. Hobbs, W. M. Woodfull, M. A. Noble, and the Control Board to consider the question of fast body-line bowling with a packed leg field, which is different to fast bowling with an orthodox field.

Massie's Opinion.
Mr. H. H. Massie, member of the Australian Test team of 1932, expected the M.C.C. to reply as they did; for, he declared, last night, it was incumbent on the club to back up their captain and their manager. The course to be followed now was a matter for the Board of Control, a body which he said he refused to criticize.

The veteran cricketer said he would be very sorry if the tour was cut short as a result of the trouble, but he did not anticipate it would reach that stage. Consideration of the dispute should be deferred until the completion of the series, when something in the nature of a round-table conference should be held.

Mr. Massie expressed strong opposition to "body-line" bowling. "If persisted in, it would have a serious effect on cricket," he said.

"To talk about the Australians squealing is absurd," Mr. Massie added. "The first squeals came from Hobbs and Warner. Hobbs objected to the bowling of Bowes,

LEG-THEORY SOLUTION

BY FRANK WOOLLEY.
Kent and England.

LOOKING back on the placid years before 1914, it seems difficult to believe that cricket is still a game and not a war of attrition between two peoples 6,000 miles apart.

Leg-theory bowling—which must sound to the uninitiated like something out of revue or comic opera—is neither new nor particularly dangerous, but it has provided an all-embracing smoke-screen to hide Australian feelings.

The Australians realise that Larwood is their master, and the present hullabaloo is due to the fact that the younger brigade of Australian batsmen have not the ability to devise a counter.

ALL FORGOTTEN.
Those magnificent batsmen Trumper and Macartney, of the graceful footwork, Noble, Armstrong, and Clem Hill would have faced England's shock troops with equanimity and sporting spirit. Sooner or later, they would have found ways and means of mastering the leg theory.

Since the days when Macdonald left Australian shores and Gregory retired through injury, fast bowling had gone into the limbo of forgotten things by the barracks of Sydney and Melbourne. The younger Australians did not know what it was to face forked lightning, and even Bradman of the mammoth scores has now been confronted with a problem, which taxes all his admitted skill.

This lack of experience in playing fast bowling makes Larwood more fearsome than he really is, and one can readily understand the chagrin and disappointment of the Australian Test players, selectors, and crowd.

PERFECT LENGTH.
Larwood can bowl a perfect length all day, and I am certain he is good enough to get the Australians out by the recognised off theory without resorting to the malignant leg field.

Leg theory, after all, is a confession of weakness by the bowling side. Its chief purpose has always been to cramp the batsman's strokes and curtail run-getting, which is very desirable in a Test match, but scarcely elevating or entertaining to the crowd.

As far as I can see leg theory has never been dangerous to the batsman, providing the bowler keeps a good length. But when a fast bowler loses his length, control, and direction he at once becomes dangerous by setting a leg field and bouncing the ball.

Such bowling creates panic in the breast of the timid batsman who, in trying to protect his body, is forced into making a bad shot. That is never to the credit of the bowler, but the Australians have and Warner said it was not cricket."

O'Reilly's View.
W. J. O'Reilly, the Australian Test bowler, when questioned before the fourth Test laughed at the idea of Australian batsmen being afraid of the leg theory. All the players, he declared, were hopeful of winning at Brisbane. Larwood certainly required watching, and was dangerous with a new ball, but otherwise the players were not concerned about him. He anticipated that things would be "all right at the finish."

SOUTH AFRICAN OPINION.

Capetown, January 19.
South African cricketers regard Australia's leg-theory protests as absurd. H. W. Taylor says there is no danger if the batsmen play forward. The trouble with the Australians is, he says, that the leading batsmen, especially Ponsford, Bradman, and Kippax, are prone to play back against the fast bowling. Taylor described the Australian Board of Control's cable as "futile." He said that McCabe was a good forward player, who was successful against the M.C.C. Taylor concluded by saying that he considered that the Australians were not entitled to "equal."

A. D. Nourse said that the Australian objections were unreasonable. He recalled that in 1921 Gregory had bumped the ball round the batsmen's heads and said that in Durban that bowler knocked his own cap splashing from his head.

H. B. Cameron, who captained the South African team in Australia last season, recalled the match at Lord's when he was knocked out by Larwood. He said that it was a pure accident, and at that time Larwood was not bowling leg-theory. Undoubtedly Oldfield's injury was a similar accident. Cameron added: "There is nothing new in the leg-theory, and as far as the Englishmen are concerned its success has been its own justification."

nothing to moan about.

It is ironic to think that nearly twelve years ago two boomerangs, named Gregory and Macdonald, were hurled into the quiet waters of English cricket, writes Frank Woolley in the Sunday Dispatch.

I have vivid memories of both. Twice in one Test match over Gregory gave me nasty cracks on the body, one in the ribs and the other in the middle of the back.

Gregory was then definitely bowling at the leg stump, and short of a length. This method was used to get me caught at square-leg before settling down.

Confession is good for the soul. I must admit that bad timing partly accounted for my being hit. I do not complain. After a long experience of cricket, one learns to take the rough with the smooth, and that, I am afraid, is where the Australians are wrong in their present attitude.

I do not think any batsman would object to leg-theory bowling provided the bowler does not deliberately bowl at his head.

While I do not admit that leg theory endangers life and limb, there is little to be said in its favour. I do not know any first-class player who really likes it, and no doubt the game is better and brighter without it.

After all, cricket is only a sport, and leg theory is dull as ditchwater to the onlooker, who keeps the game alive.

Nothing is worse than bad feeling in international cricket, and my own belief is that if the opposing side can score runs by accepted means let it get them.

At this distance it is impossible to criticise, and in any case our players would rightly resent being told what to do.

The leg-theory controversy is going to loom large on the cricket horizon for a long time, and this is my solution. Let the umpires be given full power to deal with cases of bowling at a batsman's head or body when a leg field has been set.

In the interests of fair play it would be necessary to no-ball the bowler; yet I trust cricket will never come to such a sorry pass.

It is a trite saying that there is nothing new under the sun, and leg-theory cricket was known a quarter of a century ago.

I shall not readily forget how George Gunn and Frank Tarrant dealt with it in a Gentlemen v. Players match about 1908 or 1909.

The amateurs had a fast-medium bowler, Jacques, of Hampshire, who always bowled on the leg side. He was not on the wicket, so Tarrant and Gunn ignored every ball.

After a few overs in which nothing happened, Mr. Jessop, who captained the Gentlemen, came up and asked Tarrant if he meant to "play the bowling."

Tarrant replied in the negative, and the unfortunate Jacques was taken off. He did not bowl again in the match.

Frank Foster and George Hirst, both left-handers, are supposed to have exploited leg theory, but I cannot agree. Hirst, who bowled round the wicket, had wonderful control over the ball and always maintained a perfect length. He pitched on the middle, and off stump, making the ball move in to the batsman. Many of his victims were clean bowled by the spinner.

SUICIDE CLUB.
Never in my recollection did Hirst bowl on the leg side and allow the batsmen to let the ball go gaily past.

Hirst never had more than three men on the leg side, two square legs and a fine leg, while Foster bowled to two slips and two short legs.

The modern leg theory needs an army of about six players close in on the outside, and they, I imagine, form nearly the perfect suicide club.

Surely cricket, hallowed by a tradition of chivalry and leisureliness, can do without this intensive barrage of intimidating fieldsmen, who, perhaps, are more to be pitied than the man with a bat as a shield.

MAHOMED NISSAR'S FEAT.
Lahore, Jan. 20.
The Inter-University Cricket match between the Punjab XI and the visiting team from Calcutta University provided a personal triumph for Mahomed Nissar, the Government College and All-India fast bowler, who took all 10 wickets in the visitors' first innings for 16 runs. Most of Nissar's victims for day were clean bowled, only two being caught and two being lbw.

JARDINE'S RETORT.

London, Jan. 22.
A CONTROVERSIAL note was struck, says Reuter's Ballarat correspondent, when the Ballarat Cricket Association welcomed the M.C.C. team at lunch yesterday.

In proposing the tourists' health, the Deputy Mayor, Mr. J. Harrison, said he recognised that "body-line" bowling was the M.C.C.'s method, but he hoped that Australia would never retaliate and use it themselves, as it would be a bad thing for cricket to use brutal force to suppress skill.

Jardine seemed flabbergasted for the moment, but he completely hit the nail on the head in a slashing reply:—

"You, perhaps, are a brave man to debate on the subject at the moment when it is sub judice. It is not my place to debate it. I believe it is said that one cannot libel a cricketer, but I would ask you, when considering this question, how many times Larwood has hit the wicket, especially as a fairly familiar cry of the Australian barracker is 'Bowl at the wicket!'"

Larwood, in all matches in Australia on the present tour, has taken 30 wickets. He has hit the stumps 15 times; 4 of his victims have been lbw; and 11 caught.

LORD HAWKE ON
PLAYER-WRITER.Jack Hobbs Criticised
For His Reports."NEWS CHRONICLE'S" REPLY
IN EDITORIAL.

London, Jan. 26.
Referring to player-writers, at a meeting of the Yorkshire Cricket Club, Lord Hawke said that he had no objection to players writing about the game in general, but every objection to their writing about matches in which they were playing.

When a player like Hobbs, who has been Sutcliffe's partner in tests for 10 years, and who owes not a little of his own success to Sutcliffe's fine play and splendid judgment in running singles, can describe Sutcliffe's innings in the first test of the present series as "pottering along," and as not having many strokes to lend variety to his play, and so "causing boredom," the time has arrived for such ungenerous criticism to be rendered impossible. I am not sure that Hobbs does not owe an unqualified apology both to Yorkshire and to Sutcliffe.

The News Chronicle, in an editorial answer says: "Lord Hawke's allegation that Hobbs ungenerously criticised Sutcliffe is confounded by Hobbs's own cables, which abound with generous references to the great Yorkshire player. Lord Hawke's further remarks on the subject are just foolishness."

Lord Hawke strongly condemned the Lancashire League's importation of dominion cricketers, which, he said, was detrimental to international cricket. "New Zealand had no sooner come into the test match arena," he said, "than three of her players were taken. We ought to learn that C. V. Grimmett is coming to Lancashire."

L. Darling
(Victoria)

DARLING was born on August 14, 1900. He is a left hand batsman, a useful change bowler (right hand) and a dashing fieldman. He first came under notice for the Victorian Colts against South Australia in January, 1927, but for a while did not live up to his early promise. Last season, however, he did remarkably well. He scored 511 runs in 13 innings (twice not out), averaging 40.46. He has many delightful strokes and uses his feet well. This season, Darling has scored 185 against Queensland. In the return match he scored 128. He is stated to have improved considerably and is considered to be a batsman, who, if necessary, can score fast. On this occasion he compiled 150 in 215 minutes and included 14 fours and a five. He failed against New South Wales, making 0 and 2. He has already made three appearances against the M.C.C., making 4 runs for the Australian XI, and 45 and 8 for his State. In the Test at Brisbane he scored 17 and 39.

In First Half.FINCHER'S TEAM WINS IN SEVEN-A-SIDE

(By Centre Half.)

In a friendly hockey match at King's Park yesterday afternoon, the Hong Kong Singapore Brigade R.A. second eleven defeated the Y.M.C.A. second eleven by the odd goal in 3.

G. H. Fowler gave the "Y" the lead in the first 15 minutes of play, but by the interval the Indians had found the net twice. In the second half, the "Y" defence held out well, no further scoring taking place.

The Indians were best served by their centre-forward, left wing and left back, while for the "Y" G. Fowler and S. Fowler shone in the forward line. Bates, Allen and Smith formed a hard working half back trio.

Saints Seven-A-Side Tourney.
E. F. Fincher's team gained their first victory in the St. Andrew's Club Seven-A-Side league when they defeated E. H. P. White's team by 3 goals to 2 on the Marina ground. This was White's team's second defeat in two games.

Both sides were not at full strength being one short. For White's side, Lynn played a hard game in the defence. E. F. Fincher, at centre-forward, was a constant worry.

In the first half E. F. Fincher scored first, but P. Gittins equalised with a good shot from the left. Fincher scored again, but Broadbridge again placed White's team on equal terms.

The second half produced a ding-dong struggle. Towards the end Fincher, from a breakaway, scored the winning goal.

White's team had bad luck in not equalising through P. Gittins, off-side prevented fine opportunities from materialising.

Teams were as follows:—
Fincher's team:—M. Bryson, Mrs. Versouna, E. Woolley, E. N. M. Lee, E. F. Fincher, S. A. Sweet.

White's team:—E. H. P. White, E. Landolt, G. Lynn, E. MacNider, F. A. Broadbridge, P. E. Gittins.

THE FRONTIER GUARDS

"You mustn't imagine that you can go into a disturbed spot such as this and expect to see about ten ghosts in as many minutes. Even in the case of such a busy hive as Pallton there are many quiet periods, and some people simply cannot see ghosts." The odds are very much against your desire being granted, though, if you are psychic, the atmosphere of the place would affect you at once.

"How?"

"Well, you've often heard of people who know by some obscure but infallible instinct that there's a cat in the room. Just so. However, I'll certainly give you the chance. It won't seriously disturb me. I can get the key in the morning from the woman who looks after it, though I need hardly say she doesn't sleep there. There is no need for a caretaker. It was broken into once, but the burglar was found dead in the dining-room, and since then the crooks have given it a wide berth."

"It really is dangerous, then?"

"Beginning to feel a bit prudent?"

"No, I shall feel safe with you."

"Very well then. After coming back from golf we'll pay it a visit. It will be dark by five, and we'll make the excursion about six. The chances of gratifying your curiosity will be better after dark. I'd better tell you something else. I never quite know how these places are going to affect me. Before now, I have gone off into a kind of trance and been decidedly weird, my dear Jim. My sense of time and space becomes distorted, though for your assurance I may say," he added, smiling, "I am never dangerous when in this condition. Furthermore, you must be prepared to make acquaintance with a mode of existence in which the ordinary laws of existence which you have always known abdicate themselves. Bierce called his famous book of ghost stories, 'Can These Things Be?' Assuredly they can. Now I'm sounding pompous and pontifical, but some such warning is necessary. When I touch that front door to-morrow I may become in a sense a stranger to you; once inside we shall cross a frontier into a region with its own laws of time and space, and where the seemingly impossible can happen. Do you understand what I mean and still want to go?"

"Yes," replied Brinton, "to all your questions."

"Very well then," said Lander, "I will now get out the chess-men and discover a complete answer to Reti's opening which you sprang on me last night; so you shall have the white pieces."

November 21 was a lazy, drowsy, cloudless day, starting with a sharp ground frost, which, thawing unresistingly as the sun climbed, made the trees at Ellensborough like tiny elms. In consequence neither Brinton nor Lander played very good golf. This upset Brinton not at all, for he was thinking much more of that which was beginning to impress him as a possible ordeal, the crossing of the threshold of Pallton a few hours later. As they finished their second round a mist, spreading like a gigantic spider's web was beginning to raise the level of the Buckinghamshire fields. As they walked homewards it climbed with them, keeping pace with them like a dog; sometimes hurrying ahead, then dropping back but always with them.

It was exactly five o'clock as they reached Laymer's. Tea was ready. "Do you still want to go, Jim?" asked Lander abruptly.

"Sure, Bo!" replied Brinton lightly.

"Here's the key," said Lander, smiling, "the Open Sesame to the Chamber of Horrors. The electric light is turned off, so all the light we shall have will be produced by my torch. One last word of advice. If you want to get the best chance of a thrill, try to keep your mind quite empty—don't talk as I personally conduct this tour. Concentrate on not concentrating."

"I understand what you mean," said Brinton.

"Well, then, let's get a move on," said Lander.

An idea suddenly occurred to Brinton. "How will you be able to show me over it if you've never been inside it?"

"You needn't worry about that," replied Lander.

The fog was thick by now, and they wavered slightly as they groped their way down the lane, compressed by high hedges, which led to Pallton. When they reached it Brinton's eyes turned up to observe the windows on the second floor. And then Lander stepped forward and placed the key in the lock.

As the door swung open the fog, which seemed to have been crouching at his heels, leapt forward and entered with him, and inundated the passage down which he moved. The moment he was inside, something advanced to meet him. He opened a door on the left of the passage and flashed his torch round it. The fog was in there, too. Jim, he could feel, was at his elbow.

"This is where they found the burglar—it's the dining-room."

His voice was not quite under control. "Quite a pleasant room; smells a bit frowsty." The little beam wandered from chair to desk, settling for a moment here and there. Then he shut the door and stepped along the passage till the little beam revealed a flight of stairs, which he began to climb. He still heard Brinton's steps coming up behind him. Up on the first floor he opened another door. "This is the drawing room," he said. "The Proctors' cook was found dead here in 1921."

Round swung the tiny beam, fastening on chairs, tables, desks, curtains. He shut the door, and began to climb another flight of stairs. He could hear Jim's feet pattering up behind him. On the second floor he opened still another door. "This, my dear Jim, is the nasty one; it was from here Amy Pendexter fell and broke her neck."

His voice had risen slightly, and he was speaking quickly. Once again he flashed his torch over chairs, tables, curtains, and ahead.

"Well, Jim, do you get any reaction? Do you? You can speak now." As there was no answer, he turned, and swung the beam of his torch on to the person just behind him. But it wasn't Brinton who was standing at his elbow.

What's the matter, Willie?" asked Brinton. "Can't you find the keyhole?" The figure in front of him remained motionless.

"Can't you find the keyhole?" asked Brinton more urgently.

As the figure still remained motionless, Jim Brinton lit a match and peered forward. And then he reeled back.

"Who, in God's name, are you?" he cried.

eyes on the lucrative business, and amended their statutes to allow a similar three months' qualification for citizenship. Small wonder that the Nevada attorneys were alarmed, and took steps to keep their own State pre-eminent by bringing in the six weeks' law.

Unlike some other "rackets," this one has the full support of the whole trading community. On a rough calculation, each candidate for divorce spends two months in the State, qualifying for citizenship and attending Court proceedings. The money which these visitors, with their attendant witnesses and friends, bring into Nevada is a highly important economic factor in a State whose chief industry—mining—is virtually at a standstill.

But if the divorce clientele is still a fairly steady source of income, the gambling boom has collapsed like a pricked balloon. You enter Reno's principal street under an illuminated arch, which bids you welcome to "the biggest little city in the world." To-day that welcome seems to mock the town's quenched gaiety. Reno is desolate, as only a city of pleasure can be when the pleasure-seekers have departed.

Wealth In The Hills

For the wealthy plungers who flocked to Reno after the gambling law was passed have grown tired of losing their money, or no longer have any to lose. The gaming houses have had to fall back on a local clientele that considers 25c a big stake. Two-thirds of these resorts are now closed; and it is said that only a couple of those remaining are making a profit from the tables, though others may recoup themselves by dispensing illicit liquor.

The slump that seemed to have passed Nevada by has come at last. Thirteen banks closed in a single day, and the State woke up to find itself poor. There were only twenty-six banks in this thinly populated territory, and twelve of those, now shut belong to a single chain, with local deposits amounting to $17,000,000. Reno alone has $10,000,000 tied up in closed banks.

Nevada's real industry is not gambling and divorce, but mining. Almost every known metal except tin can be produced in commercial quantities from these waterless, sun-baked hills.

Not for nothing is Nevada called the Silver State. Yet silver is not worth mining at present prices. Of the once profitable lead and zinc mines, not one is working, and production of quick-silver has virtually ceased.

Always Optimistic.

But Nevada still preserves an optimism as boundless as its desert acres. Of its 72,000,000 acres, only 3,000,000 could ever be cultivated, even if all the State's water supplies were perfectly distributed.

Land may be had for the asking, for 55,000,000 acres are still unreserved and unappropriated. Some of this is that wilderness of yellow hills, a prospector will one day strike gold. Why not to-morrow? That is Nevada's hope.

A WHOLE WEEK'S NEWSPAPERS IN ONE.

Mrs. Pearce's Trentbridge fulfilled predictions on February 20 when he galloped home to a decisive victory in the Hong Kong Derby. Hidden by Mr. V. V. Needa, of Shanghai, the favourite showed splendid stamina in a fine finishing run. Riding Mrs. Dunbar's Tilticum in the Tyro Stakes, Mr. W. Hill, the Shanghai jockey, returned the first three-figure dividend of the annual race meeting, beating the Godwit, a well-fancied candidate, ridden by Mr. L. G.
Frost, to pay $109. The race, which was over five furlongs, was won in 1 minute: 14.2 seconds. Diana Bay, whose defeat was the surprise of the day on February 18, vindicated himself by winning the Victoria Stakes, over a mile distance, while Racing Boy, another of last year's favourites clocked a mile distance in 2 minutes, 07.1 seconds, to win the Garrison Cup.

The annual meeting is fully reported in the
OVERLAND CHINA MAIL.

"If you are to accomplish your full duty in regard to the College you should take a keen interest in all its varied activities, intellectual, athletic and moral," declared the Rt.
Rev. Mgr. Bishop H. Valtorta, D.D., in addressing the students of St. Joseph's College, Hong Kong, at the annual prize distribution, held in the College Hall on February 18.
There was a large attendance. The Bishop expressed the earnest hope that the College would continue to maintain its high reputation among the Colleges of the Far East.
A full report, together with a report of the first annual prize-day of the Chung Nan College, is given in the OVERLAND CHINA MAIL.

That Government did not accept two schemes offered by the Hong Kong Tramways, Limited, in connection with the franchisement of the motorbus services both on the Island and on the mainland, was revealed by Mr. A. B.
Stewart (Chairman) in his speech when presiding at the ordinary yearly meeting of the Company held at the board room of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., Ltd., on February 16.

The meeting is reported in the OVERLAND CHINA
MAIL.

The crowd were given an early thrill when Paynter ran Oldfield out from mid-off with only 3 runs added. The Lancashire left-hander broke the wicket with a magnificent return. 414-8-52.

Oldfield batted splendidly for 138 minutes and hit four. O'Reilly left sixteen runs later when Allen got one past his guard 430-9-19. The innings closed at 435, scored in 410 minutes, when Larwood claimed his fourth wicket by bowling Ironmonger, "the world's worst batsman."

Australia's last five wickets this added 139 valuable runs to-day.

Larwood was bowled more than usual, Jardine taking the opportunity as it was the last Test, but his figures of 4 for 98 in 32 overs were excellent. Allen was expensive, but Verity proved his worth by breaking up two dangerous-looking partnerships.

England scored 62 for 1 wicket before the tea interval.

Jardine gave two difficult chances at 8 and 9 and the complained against Alexander, a fast bowler, for running on the pitch and cutting it up.

The crowd was silent in marked contrast to the occasion in the first Test when Woodfull objected to Allen doing the same thing.

VOLUNTARY WORK SCHEME.

British Labour Minister Considers Plan.

London, To-day.

Answering a question calling his attention to the voluntary work scheme in Germany, whereby employment has been provided for 200,000 youths on schemes of communal service, the Labour Minister, Sir Henry Betterton, in the House of Commons, yesterday, said he was giving the most careful consideration to the question of introducing a similar scheme into Britain.

What was appropriate to one country, might, however, not be suitable for another, he said.—British Wireless Service.

Police Promotions.

Sub-Inspectors F. T. James, who until recently was officer-in-charge of Cheung Chau Island Police Station, has been appointed Inspector of Weights and Measures in succession to Inspector R.H.E. Marks, who is shortly taking over the duties of Chief Inspector, vice Mr. Peter Grant, A.S.P.

Jardine fell to a catch at the wicket off O'Reilly at 31, after having scored 28.

The fifty went up in 57 minutes. Sutcliffe (15) and Hammond (26) being not out at tea with the score at 63 for 1.

"What about the ships which carry troops, and railway materials, oil, rubber, steel, chemicals, food, textiles, boots, medical remedies and all the necessities for warfare? Are these to be classed under the same schedule? the article asks.

If it is intended to prohibit them, it amounts to an economic boycott," the paper states.—Reuter.

HORSE'S TAIL FOR MR. ROOSEVELT.

Albany, New York.

A Christmas gift, which pleased Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt greatly, was the tail of the champion trotting horse, "Closter," which was bred by his father, James Roosevelt, at the family home at Hyde Park more than sixty years ago. The tail of this once famous horse, the first to trot a mile under 2:20, was sent to the Governor by a resident of the state.—Reuter.

Police last night found a Chinese female child, aged 2 years, abandoned on the U.S.R.C. grounds, King's Park. The child was sent to the Kwong Wah Hospital.

Zaroff was proud of his collection. Zaroff, polished sportsman, who turned ships to destruction, then hunted down the male survivors in his island jungle, for the sporting thrill!

This fellow died a cringing death, too much like a shooting chicken.

This man might have won the game, but fear kept him.

Then came the two to Zaroff's lonely island. Their story is strange and terrible.

Always have GARDAN in the house!

When you are out of sorts remember:

prevents and stops pain
